NOTE FOR THE DDI

- I agree that there must be follow-on but suggest that the next round not be a heavyweight one.
- The DCI has made his point. Security should follow up with a letter (not a threat) and addressed to the respective security offices, not to senior officials. D/Security can note, orally, that cutoff comes next, as a security routine.
- Also without diminishing basic intent, I suggest a different approach to accounting. Rather than require individual creativity, we could suggest how the documents should be handled and require acknowledgment. Such could be in the form of signature and return of the OS "instruction" letter, reflecting compliance with the groundrules.
